The Old Rectory, Carshalton - Thursday 26 March at 19:30 Sue Horne, author of 'A Respectable Parsonage House', gives an illustrated talk on the history of this Grade II* listed building. Surprisingly, the house only functioned as a rectory for less than a third of its life. The occupants were not, as might be expected, all clergymen. Instead, they were a rich mixture of different people who either owned, lived in, or worked in the Old Rectory over the past 300 years. Tickets: £4.00 (£5.00 for non-members)
London at War - Thursday 23 April at 19:30 We welcome back Ian Bevan, who is always a popular speaker. The experience of the First World War prepared London for the next. Schemes worked out in the 1930s led to detailed plans for the air defence of London - air raid shelters; civil defence training; evacuation of the city. Tickets: £4.00 (£5.00 for non-members)
Doctors, Dirt & Disease - Thursday 28 May at 19:30 Ann Morton describes the development of local health services from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries before the introduction of the NHS. She will look at patients such as paupers, the mentally ill and chronically sick, the treatment of epidemics, the involvement of family GPs and the variety of hospital provision, as well as public health matters and community services Tickets: £4.00 (£5.00 for non-members)
The Calico People - Thursday 23 July at 19:30 An illustrated talk from Mick Taylor from the Wandle Industrial Museum. From the late 1600s with an influx of Huguenots driven out of France the Wandle Valley became a hive of activity for the textile industry of England. With famous names such as William Morris and Liberty's associated in the later years of the industry there are many more individuals and families who had an influence on the textile world Tickets: £4.00 (£5.00 for non-members)
