Morris in the Village: Illustrated talk by Colin Minns Thursday 24 July 19:30 at Honeywood Museum Morris Dancing? In Carshalton? Really? Learn more about the various Morris traditions that are represented in and near Carshalton. Discover the styles of the different sides, current and past, what they do and where they originated from. During the year local dancers and musicians travel the country to perform and entertain others. Find out more about the dancing, events that we attend and what motivates relatively sane people to spend so much of their lives dressed oddly and expend so much time, money and energy. Colin Minns, Squire of Black Swan Morris, explains his obsession. Seats £7 (Friends £6)
Wallington & Carshalton's War: Illustrated talk by Margaret Thomas Thursday 25 September 19:30 at Honeywood Museum Local historian Margaret Thomas recounts through stories, photos and documents, the experiences of the residents of Carshalton and Wallington as they fought for freedom during the Second World War. Among many other others, we hear about two brothers who were both captured at the retreat to Dunkirk and met in a POW camp, the medic who was at the liberation of Bergen Belsen who fell in love and married a young woman who had been imprisoned there for several years, and the fireman who risked his life to free an elderly couple from the rubble of their house in Carshalton. Seats £7 (Friends £6)
Beddington, Nonsuch and the Renaissance Garden: Illustrated talk by John Phillips Thursday 23 October 19:30 at Honeywood Museum John Phillips explores the remarkable garden created at Beddington by Sir Francis Carew in the reign of Elizabeth I. He also explores the garden's European background looking at Renaissance gardens in France, Germany, Austria and Italy. Seats £7 (Friends £6)
The Mistresses of Henry VIII: Illustrated talk by Alison Weir Thursday 27 November 19:30 at CryerArts, Carshalton Henry VIII is famous as the King who married six times; his matrimonial adventures have been a source of enduring fascination for centuries. Yet relatively little is known about the King's extra-marital adventures. He prided himself on being a virtuous prince, and when it came to sex, he was discreet, even prudish, so the evidence for his affairs is sparse. Yet it is clear that he took a number of mistresses, enjoyed fleeting sexual adventures, and was as promiscuous as most Renaissance rulers. Alison Weir has crafted a fascinating narrative from the fragmentary sources, which throws light on Henry VIII's private life, revealing striking insights into the man and his psyche. All Seats £7
